Massachusetts Agricultural College,

A RARE CHANCE for young men to obtain a thorough practical education. The cost reduced to a minimum. Tuition free to residents of Massachusetts. An opportunity to pay a portion of expenses by work in the farm and horticultural departments.

REQUISITES FOR ADMISSION. Candidates must be fifteen years of age or over, and pass satisfactory oral and written examinations in English Grammar, Geography, History of the United States, Arithmetic, Algebra to Quadratic Equations, and the Metric System.

EXPENSES, Board in clubs is about $2.50 per week, and in families $3.50 to $5.00. Room rent, $5.00 to $16.00 per term. Fuel, $7.00 to $20.00 per year. Washing 40 to 50 cents per dozen. Military suit, $17.75. Books at wholesale prices. Furniture, second-hand or new, for sale in town.

INSTRUCTION. The course of study is intended to give thorough and practical instruction in the five departments, assisting to give a better understanding of:

- Agricultural, theoretical and practical stock-breeding, drainage and irrigation, special crops, etc.
- Botany, including horticulture, market gardening, arboriculture, care of greenhouses, etc.
- Chemistry, in its application to agriculture and the industries. Practice work in the laboratory. Geology and mineralogy, so far as relating to the composition of soils, mineral constituents, etc.
- 4. Animal life zoölogy, entomology, veterinary science, human anatomy and physiology.
- Mathematics and physics, including practical work in surveying, road making, laying of tiles, etc. Meteorology, in the relation of climate to crops, etc.

MILITARY INSTRUCTION. Under the law by which the college was founded, instruction in military drill is required, and each student, unless physically debarred, drills under direction of a regular army officer three hours per week.

ADVANTAGES. The facilities for instruction and illustration are of the best, and include a working library of 10,000 volumes, properly classified and arranged; the State collection of birds, insects, reptiles and rocks of Massachusetts; the Knowlton herbarium of 10,000 species of named botanical specimens; the 1500 species and varieties of plants, types of the vegetable kingdom, cultivated in the Durfee plant house; the large collections and library of Amherst College within easy access; a farm of 383 acres, divided between the agricultural, horticultural and experimental departments, embracing every variety of soil, from meadow, pasturage and lowland, to swamp, hillside and woodland; a chemical laboratory, commodious and amply equipped; the State Agricultural Experiment Station upon the college farm, and the experiment station established under the provisions of the Hatch bill, offering splendid opportunities for observing the application of science to the problems of agriculture.

Catalogues and further information can be obtained on application to the President,

PROF. S. T. MAYNARD,

Our respected instructor, in grateful appreciation of the kindly interest he has continually manifested toward our class, we dedicate this volume of the

INDEX.

Introduction.

NOTHER year of college life has come and gone since the public were greeted with our predecessor's, 92's, "Index." It has undoubtedly been perused again and again and at last been placed upon the shelf, side by side with similar volumes of former years. And now the students and friends of the M. A. C. are anxiously awaiting the debut of the twenty-third volume of the "Index."

We have endeavored to preserve the merits of former volumes and to make improvements wherever practicable. An important variation, in our opinion, has been made in the location of the alumni list, the idea being to bring the members of the college together and to facilitate reference. It was thought best to enlarge the editorial board by the addition of one new member, for a reason which former editors, at least, can appreciate. It is difficult, for those who have never been in a similar position, to realize the amount of time and effort required to gather sufficient material for a publication of this kind. As the book has been enlarged from year to year by the addition of new features, the work has increased proportionally. Thus, in order that the work might be accomplished with less exertion to the individual, we have increased our editorial board from seven to eight.

If the brief sketch of the professional life of each member of the faculty and of the positions held by each student in the various college organizations shall prove to be in any way helpful or interesting, we shall feel amply repaid for the labor which this new feature has necessitated.

And now, fellow students, as we place this volume in your hands, we trust that you will read carefully and criticise gently, and that you will suffer no disappointment at the appearance of our "Index."

As the "wheels of time" move slowly on, and the pages of history are unfolded, let us question for a little the historian. As his eye wanders over the world, he sees a succession of mountains and valleys, alternating one after the other, gradually broadening until they seem disseminated over the surface of the whole world.

Immediately before him is a valley of unusual breadth and luxuriance of vegetation, its fertile fields traversed with many streams of broad and deep waters. At the farther side of this valley rises a rugged mountain range, with glittering rocks cropping the surface here and there. A company of men are eagerly pressing on up its sides, but as the historian's gaze lingers, he sees them turn sadly away, for they have learned the truth of the old adage that "all is not gold that glitters." On the other side the valley is another mountain, equal in grandeur and ruggedness to the first, and the keen eye of the historian perceives that within these walls of earth are hidden vast stores of those metals which delight the eye of a manufacturer. Down its sides run shallow tumultuous streams, and upon its summit sits an evil genius.

Such is the tale of the historian. What is this broad and fertile valley, and what are those mountains, its neighbors? Over the broad expanse of the former seems to be written the legend of '92. Those broad and deep waters are streams of progress, flowing out to the wide world beyond. The farther mountain with its glitter of delusive dust has inscribed upon its summit the name of '91, while the other shows the bold face of '93.

Such are the relations that the historian ascribes to '92, and such, fellow classmates, we are to consider our position. Our guiding genius may sometimes have been sportive, and slightly fractious, but she has led us faithfully to the position we now hold. We have reached these heights of seniority untrammeled by under-class conditions. We have passed from Freshman oblivion and Sophomoric turmoil, and have escaped the matrimonial "Slough of Despond," into which so many Juniors are wont to fall.

But the lot of a Senior is by no means an easy one, for not only has he his regular college duties to perform, but he is expected to maintain an air of serious intellectuality, and his face must shine with the reflection of all those higher psychical states with which he has become so familiar, while beneath his sportive tile must repose a brain unrivaled in originality and utterly devoid of self-interest.

If we fail in one or all of these qualifications, or if w(W)eeds have sometimes been found among our f(F)ields, we ask your indulgence, for even Seniors are but mortal. Trusting your magnanimity for this, we bid you farewell.

YELL - Yazoo! Yazoo! Ze-Zi-Ze! Rah-Rah-Rah! '93!

As once more our communication is demanded for the pages of the Index, we are reminded that our course here at college, like a little rivulet, is swiftly eddying along, each moment approaching nearer and nearer, as it were, the outlet into the larger and more conspicuous river of every-day life. It seems almost incredible at first, that two years of our college days are passed and gone. Many of these days, especially those of which every moment has been utilized to its fullest extent, will ever be looked upon with extreme pleasure and gratification. As for those golden hours which have been spent in idleness, 'twere best to say nothing of them, but leave them to the—no, not pleasurable—consideration of him whom it may most concern.

The past year has been one of prosperity for '93 as a class. Those obstacles in our way as Freshmen only served to bind us more closely together, only resulted in firmer resolutions for the attainment of higher and greater achievements. So great has been the development that a graduate of '90, coming here today, will wonder if this class, which figures so voluminously on the foot ball field, which furnishes such valuable material to the base ball team, which holds its own so well in the gymnasium,—will wonder, I say, if this can be the self-same '93 of two years previous.

During the year several class trips, of more or less importance, were taken. These certainly afforded pleasure and new ideas to members, and were undergone with very little loss in the way of study.

Then when Arbor Day presented itself to '93 as Sophomores, two or three men decided that the most fitting way the class could celebrate the day would be to lay out a grove, in which, on future occasions, we may hold our class reunions. The project was entered upon and was vigorously carried out. The result is more than satisfactory, and dozens of promising young trees are to be seen a little west of Old Chapel.

There is yet a tender subject which is most difficult of all to be touched upon. Of course, as Juniors, we are now expected to look upon the gentler sex with a little more favor than when ugly Sophomores, and we flatter ourselves the dear girls will show just good enough taste to submit to our humble graces without a murmur of impatience.

Now that our change of standing in sports has been alluded to, just here it may be said that our development has not all been of the physical sort. Our class has always taken the stand that, for the maintenance of the reputation of the M. A. C., it should produce a set of men truly worthy to be known as alumni of our college. Let us then, classmates, keep and stimulate this aim until every man in '93 shall have reached a point among the men in the world where he may with excusable pride call the attention of the under-graduate of Aggie to his own career, as being one well worthy of emulation.

Sophomore.

CLASS COLORS—Peacock Blue and Cream.

CLASS YELL—Rah-Rex-Rah! Zip-Boom-Bah! '94! '94! Rah-Rah-Rah!

UR Freshman year with all its trials and triumphs has come and gone, and it is with sophomoric pride that we hand in this our second communication.

Since passing the entrance examinations, fortune has seemed to smile on us, and the success we have attained, both in the recitation room and on the athletic field, makes evident the love and respect we have for our Alma Mater, and our determination to prove worthy of her benefits and protection. That we have traveled faithfully the path of learning is shown by the number now in the class as compared with the number which entered. Some of us, also, have braved the elocutionary powers of several of the "Profs" with noble fortitude and great moral courage. We have, furthermore, learned to appreciate fully the value of the library to the busy student when compositions have to be written, or the lectures of the professors are wanted in concise form.

In athletics we have more than held our own, and our defeating the Amherst Freshman and the High School elevens, and tieing the score with our predecessors, the class of '93, in foot ball in our Freshman year, will long be remembered and held up as a standard to be attained by succeeding classes. Then, too, our showing on the diamond last spring was such as we can always look back upon with pardonable pride.

This year we have succeeded in defeating the Freshmen at foot ball, with a score never before secured upon our campus. We are still expectantly awaiting the rope-pull, confident that we shall obtain a sample of the rope for the adornment of our rooms.

The pride of every class, Freshman night, is a thing of the past, and we are sure that history will do us justice in recording the events of that occasion. It could not honorably do otherwise. Our display of fireworks upon that memorable night was especially fine, and, although inexperienced in such things, our banquet was enjoyed by all and lasted until the gray light of morn appeared, revealing '94 one step higher on the ladder of fame.

In regard to rushes, we have had but two, and "the day was ours" in both cases, yet we cannot fail to mention the praiseworthy pluck of the Freshmen.

Classmates, still retaining "perseverance" as our motto, let us continue as heretofore in removing those obstacles which fall across our path; and, trusting to Future, who is ever lenient to those who work for the good of others, let us press forward to the goal of our life.

"Eli, what's it mean in this'ere college book er yourn when it speaks about 'upper classmen'?"

ELI, '94.—"Upper classmen? Oh, they are the 'Sophomores.'"

Freshman.

CLASS COLORS-Orange and Crimson.

CLASS YELL—Rah-Rix-Rive! Rah-Rix-Rive! Boom-a-lang! Boom-a-lang! '95!

E, the class of '95, take pleasure in presenting to the readers of the Index this our first communication. As only a few weeks have passed since we entered the portals of the M. A. C., our experiences are limited, yet the short time we have been here enables us to look forward to the coming four years with pleasant anticipation.

The entrance examinations were the first obstacles in our way, but forty-one valiant men safely passed the ordeal and entered the class of '95, to begin the battle of college life. Since then our ranks have been increased to forty-five by those entering later. We hope all will have sufficient purpose and ambition to hold out to the end. We are pleased to see with us classmates from Japan, Porto Rico, and Mexico. Illinois and Connecticut are also represented in our number. The remainder are all fair samples of Bay State boys.

The first night we were in college, rumors of the "Owl Club" and its vicious acts came to us, but thus far they have favored but one of our number with a visit. Although inferior in numbers to our immediate predecessors, we were anxious to try our strength with the Sophs., and soon were given an opportunity in a rush on the Botanic Path. Did we hesitate? No; the words of our leader were obeyed. "Line up there, '95. Heads down. Go!" Victory was ours; one strong push broke their ranks and sent them flying. In our next rush the Sophs. had a great advantage in regard to numbers, but we endeavored to show them that we were not deficient in that qualification, essential to any spirited class, termed pluck.

Our game of foot ball with the Sophomores turned out unfortunately for us, owing to inexperience in the game. But we think the material which we have will in time develop into a strong team.

We are exceedingly hopeful for our success in base ball the coming spring. We hope that we shall be able to reinforce the college base ball team with some valuable material.

Our connection with the faculty thus far has been a very pleasant one, and we are satisfied that it only remains for us to do our part in order to accomplish the work and gain the object for which we are here.

Classmates: Like many who have gone before, we now take up the duties of college life. It remains with us how much we shall accomplish. Let us aim high, attend faithfully to our duties, and strive to make the career of the Class of '95 a credit not only to ourselves, but to our college. The future lies before us. May the sentiment of the poet be our guide in our college life:

"Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

The Word, College.

It has been said that words are fossil thoughts. If by this is meant that words, apart from the idea conveyed by them, have neither life nor power, the statement and the metaphor contained in it may be correct. Not so, however, if we mean that a given word always expresses the same thought, that there is neither growth nor change in the idea brought to the mind by it, that the pictures presented by it are always and everywhere the same.

What is a fossil? "A substance dug from the earth;" "the petrified form of a plant or animal in the strata composing the surface of our globe." During all the centuries since the plant or animal found its grave, it has undergone no change. Geologists tell us that a mammoth buried in the ice of Siberia can have even its eye-balls preserved for some such time as even one hundred thousand years, and that a grass-like plant, buried in the far more ancient coal-beds, may keep so perfectly that it remains flexible to the present day.

This characteristic of permanence does not belong to the thought expressed by a given word; and not the least interesting feature of the study of language is to trace the changes in the meaning of words, to see that the thought presented by them to our minds is wholly unlike that presented to the minds of those who lived hundreds of years before us.

An interesting illustration of this fact is furnished by the word college. A Latin word, coming into the English through the French, its first idea is simply that of a "collection, body, or society of men invested with certain rights or engaged in common pursuits." As early as the thirteenth century there was founded in Paris a "college" that was merely a boarding-house. The university established there attracted a throng of students eagerly desiring its advantages, many of whom sought lodging and some sort of protection and superintendence at a moderate cost. To supply this want the "college" was founded, the name at first having been specially applied to the houses of the religious orders, where were accommodated those young men who meant to devote themselves wholly to a "religious" life.

From France our word, having the meaning just explained, passed over into England. The monastic institutions that early had a home in Oxford and Cambridge were practically colleges, because in them there was a common life under authority. Prof. Freeman, writing of the Oxford and Cambridge of today, says, "A college is before all things a foundation. It is a house built and endowed for the dwelling and maintenance of students. * * The primary idea of a college is not the teaching of anybody; it is the maintenance in an incorporated society of some of those who come to profit by the teaching and other advantages of the university."

We see then that the word college, in the thirteenth century, meant something quite different from the nineteenth century institution called by the same name. It is interesting to notice also how different are the ideas presented by this word to different persons living at the same time and even in the same country. Going to college! What meaning do these words convey to the mind of the undergraduate?

Here is one, the circumstances of whose life have thus far made it a continuous holiday, in which every wish has been gratified and every want supplied. He is going to college because most of the fellows of his set are going. Did not his father and grandfather, too, graduate from college? Surely, "to go to college" is the thing to do.

Another sees in the college a place for "a good time." "I expect," he says, "to be on the base-ball and foot-ball teams, and to win prizes in athletics."

Still another, whose eyes have been opened, in some measure, to the wondrous world around him, in whose mind a desire for knowledge has been awakened, and who has some appreciation of the nobleness of a consecrated life, looks forward to the college as the place where fresh impulses are to be received, increased power secured, and a still broader view of duty and truth and the meaning of life obtained.

An Agricultural College! What do these words mean? To one mind they present the idea of a place from which must be graduated practical farmers, ever ready, because of their college training, to guide the plow with a steadier hand and to wield the axe for a surer blow.

Another, a father whose partial eyes detect in his son signs of promise not revealed to the duller sight of a less affectionate vision, regards the agricultural college as wholly unworthy of state or national support, because, forsooth, the college has not given this son the power to gather from the reluctant soil a harvest so rich and golden that there is no longer need for the tired limbs to plod and the weary hands to toil.

Far different was the thought of the wise legislator who would offer the first fruits of his country's vast domain at the shrine of education, and appropriate to each state from the public lands of the nations the means for "the endowment, support and maintenance of at least one college, where the leading object shall be * * * to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts * * * in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life."

Class Poem.

Time, with her swiftly fleeting years,
Bears all our fates upon her scroll:
Our joys and sorrows, hopes and fears,
Which years, in passing, will unroll.

When first we left our father's home,
Dim was the path our feet must tread;
On untried seas we launched our bark,
While clouds of doubt around us spread.

But passing time makes plain the way
Which once was filled with doubts and fears;
Our college days will soon be passed
And numbered with forgotten years.

Forgotten—not while time shall last,
Or stars shall shine in heaven's deep blue;
These years will ever treasured be
On memory's page, in hearts so true.

With classmates round us, tried and true, Why should we fear old Fate's decree? Love binds us with a golden cord—Our loyal love for Ninety-Three.

A Parental Visit.

On the 15th day of September, as one of our Professors was proceeding to his room, where wisdom and logic are instilled into the minds of students, he was hailed at the corner of a dormitory with the words, "Say. bub, kin you tell me whar Reub. Garskill puts up? He's my boy, and me and my wife concluded we'd come up and take him sorter onexpected like."

The Professor, thus addressed, turned around and beheld an aged man and woman, attired in costumes of very antique pattern. "I guess you will rather surprise the boy," said the humble Professor.

The old man eagerly grasped this hint of encouragement, and said, "I say, young feller—"

"Look here, my friend, I am one of the Professors in this institution," replied the indignant member of the faculty.

"Oh! you be, be yer? Wall, I want to know if you be one of them ar fellers the boy was a cussin' and swarin' about last time he was home. Gosh! I tuck you to be a pretty squar' sort of a chap. Wall, I never was much took to mind readin', as they call it, anyway. Come, Marthie, this haint no place for us to be a standin'. Let's go and hunt up Reub."

So they jogged along together from one building to another, until "Hello, Ma," rang out from one of the windows. Presently the sound of hurried footsteps was succeeded by the advent of a large-boned, brawny chap, awkward in manner and gait, bearing on his visage a smile, which occasioned the presence of the corners of his mouth at two points located somewhere in the rear of his ears. Notwithstanding he had on cowhide boots, the bottoms of his pants made anything but close connections with them. The sight must have appalled the mother, for she burst into tears and hugged the boy with a will. Old Seth shook hands, and said with a shaky voice, "Hello, Reub.! how be ye, old boy? But, thunder and lightnin', either you've growed some or else I've shrunk consider'ble of late years. Queer how youngsters will stretch up when they once get started, haint it, Marthie?"

Then Reuben took it upon himself to show his parents around the place. The trio chatted in a loving manner until, coming suddenly upon "'94" painted in large characters on the walk, the old man halted abruptly, and queried, "What do them ar' figgers stand for? Oh, I know now. Some feller got 94 per cent in gogerphrey, and the bigfeelin' calf wants everybody else to know on't. Don't have nothin' to do with him, Reub., will ye?" The boy promised not to, and they went on. Presently the appearance of the janitor around the corner attracted Seth's attention, but when Reub. told him who it was, he exclaimed, "I declar', I thought like's not it was another one of them ar' Professors you was tellin' me on. I got arter one of 'em this mornin', and if I didn't gin him thunder then my name haint Seth Garskill. But say, Reub., where be them striped overhauls, with three pockets in 'em, that I give you last Christmas? 'Pears to me you're gettin' mighty high-toned out here, a-goin' round with Sunday clothes on every day. I presume you'll be jist like the rest on 'em afore long, in spite of the 'tention I've paid to your bringin' up."

Thus the walk continued, until at last Mrs. Garskill squeaked out with, "Well, it's a-gettin' late, Seth, and I guess we'd better go up to Reub.'s room and then go home. The chickens haint fed, and goodness, who knows but maybe the cows aint in yet?"

"Yas, Reub., jest show us what kind of a carstle you've got up thar', and then we'll be a-goin'."

So up they went, and for the next hour both father and mother quizzed poor Reub., until at last relief came when he saw them both on their way to the depot, the old man murmuring as they went along, "Times is changin', Marthie. I'm afeared we're a-gettin' too old-fashioned for the boy. He'll never be contented thar' on the farm again, so we'll allers have to live alone now." But she, like all good wives, cheered him up, and they went home, for weeks afterward entertaining pleasant remembrances of the trip.

Off Side Play.

"I'm Woodbury; who are you?"

STAPLES: -"This figure is a parallelopeapod."

FIELD: —"I'm going to learn to play tennis; it is going to be all the rage in Leverett next summer."

PROF. MAYNARD: - "Name an important grass."

GREEN, I. C .: - "Clover, but I do not know the name of it."

DAVIS, P. E. (eating hulled corn for the first time): —"These are the queerest beans I ever ate."

Tinoco: —" Well done is half begun." (Applause.) "No; I mean, half begun is well done."

PROF. WARNER: - "I am afraid you will tell Mr. Davis too much, Mr. Bartlett."

BART .: - "No danger of that."

STOCKWELL:—"The photographer says our class is the best-looking crowd he ever took." (It is also the first.)

LEHNERT: - "I was about to ask."

PROF. WARNER (in physics):—"Well, Mr. Graham, shall you put hot water or steam in your house?"

GRAHAM: - "I don't know, sir; I have n't decided yet."

Ranney (to Prof. Brooks): —"Those books you were talking about are in the library; but they are out."

BUB FOWLER (waking up Put.): - "Get up; there's a fire!"

PUT. (sleepily): - "Shut up; I can't go, but I'll do what I can here."

PARKER, F. I.: —" Johnnie Gifford is the pluckiest fellow in our class; he is a little pluckier than I am."

STAPLES: -- "Do monkeys have facial expressions?"

PROF. FERNALD: - "Now you are getting near home."

PROF. WARNER (to Lyman, who is not paying attention): — "You would then have to reduce the tons to feet, would you not, Mr. Lyman?"

LYMAN (emphatically): - "Yes, sir."

HUBBARD, '95:—" Who threw those lobster peels on the floor?"

HOYT (in W. I. L. S.): -"We like to sit by the fireside and put our feet on the radiator."

And LEHNERT'S Band played.

Co-operation.

How doth the busy little Soph Improve each shining hour, To paint his figures on the walk, Beneath south college tower.

How doth the reckless little Fresh
Improve each shining minute,
To prove unto the hated class
That Ninety-five is "in it."

So with his paint-pot he sets out,
And daubs those figures o'er,
And puts his own class figures
In the place of Ninety-four.

Then Ninety-four to Proxy runs,
With, "Mamma! we won't play,
Unless you make those horrid little
Freshmen keep away."

But Proxy says, "My little ones,
Why do you thus despair?

I'll help your class as best I can
In anything that's fair.

"In stacking rooms I cannot help,

But still I sympathize;

If you must do such things as that,

I'll turn away my eyes."

But Ninety-five puts in her oar
And does some hustling round,
Until among poor Ninety-four,
Stacked rooms and wrath abound.

Now, things like these are passed and gone,
And classed as history;
But still we cannot but inquire:
Who won the victory?

"My tale is not an epic,
For you will plainly see
That the story's not of valor,
Nor deeds of chivalry.
But from this simple story
The inference is plain,
That it is not well to meddle
With things you can't explain."

IVY POEM.

H. N. LEGATE.

The river Rhine rolls grandly down,
Down to the German Sea,
'Twixt lovely banks with ruins crown'd
Of the things that used to be.

There is many an ancient castle
And many a ruin hold,
Held in the knightly days of yore
By robber barons bold.

In stern and massive grandeur
The gray old towers arise,
While over them tenderly twining
The beautiful ivy lies.

Like a green and tender mantle
It encircles their ruined walls,
And down from angle and buttress
In softening verdure falls.

With soft and caressing fingers
It touches the cold, gray stone,
And adds to its rugged boldness
A beauty all its own.

So round our life in college

Let memories tenderly twine,

As round over the rough old stones

Cling those of the ivy vine.

Forgot be every jealousy,
Forgot each petty spite;
Remembered only be our joys,
The brightness and the light.

We meet today in friendship
And love that time has made,
Love that shall ever faithful prove,
Till the last great debt is paid.

We meet today to part too soon,
And leave our college home,
And far and wide across the world
In various paths to roam.

The tender ties four years have made
We soon must tear away,
And part to meet — when, no one knows!
But not for many a day.

But let us cherish in our hearts

These college memories sweet,

And not forget these scenes and friends,

Though ne'er again we meet.

IVY SONG.

Tune - Dear Evelina.

As we come, after four years of friendship, to part With each other, and scenes so dear to the heart, Our mutual love, which was early begun, Should last for each other and old '91.

Chorus.

For bold '91 of old Aggie College My song of praise shall ever, ever be; For dear '91 of old Aggie College My song of praise shall ever, ever be. As we wander in memory o'er days that have passed, And think of our gatherings, this being the last, Let us ever remember what laurels we won Will stand to the honor of old '91.

We have met on the campus with many a team, And in nearly all contests have come off supreme; Very proud each should be that he is a son Of that class of all classes, old '91.

If fortune in life should e'er chance to be ours, And honors come to us in ne'er ceasing showers, Let us ascribe it all to what has been done By old Aggie College and dear '91.

CLASS SONG.

Here's to Ninety-One, drink it down, drink it down, Here's to Ninety-One, drink it down, drink it down; Here's to Ninety-One, she's the jolly class for fun, Drink it down, drink it down, drink it down, down, down.

Now we're in for fun, drink it down, drink it down, College duties done, drink it down, drink it down; Life is just begun, and the race we must run, Drink it down, drink it down, down, down, down.

Days we soon may see, drink it down, drink it down, Full of merry glee, drink it down, drink it down; Married then we'll be with a baby on our knee, Drink it down, drink it down, drink it down, down,

Ninety-One must go, drink it down, drink it down, But Ninety-One will crow, drink it down, drink it down; She has made a show with the shovel and the hoe, Drink it down, drink it down, drink it down, down, down.

FAREWELL SONG.

[To be sung to the air, "Fair Harvard."

Dear classmates! we've gathered to sing our farewel
To the scenes we so long have held dear;
We cherish fond mem'ries of past college days,
And to think that they're gone drop a tear.
College home! we must leave thee to others who come
As we came, friendship's garlands to twine,
But ne'er, e'en in high places of earth should we sit,
Will we twine garlands fragrant as thine.

Four short years ago on thy campus we came,
And upon it we've victories won,
But no more from thy walls where we knowledge have found
Will re-echo the cry, "Ninety-One!"
No more we as students thy portals shall pass,
Through thy halls and thy corridors wend;
Nor more shall we hail thee, our holidays o'er,
As one greets the loved face of a friend.

When life's warfare is fierce and we weary of strife,
We'll remember our college life free;
We'll lay on thy altar our laurels and fame
To evince our affection for thee.
Thou hast soothed and sustained us, in grief and in toil,
Between us and the world thou hast stood,
And the bonds which have held us shall never be loosed,
But hold firm as the kinship of blood.

To each other and Aggie we'll soon bid farewell;
Each one must select his own way.
Our college life ends with the set of the sun
On the eve of Commencement Day.
Our last home-run is sped, our last touch-down is made,
Celebrations and rushes are o'er;
But, comrades! we'll smile in the midst of our tears,
For there's left us one class banquet more.

OR several years past there has been considerable talk of having a field; day in the spring of the year, for the purpose of awakening among the students greater interest in general athletics. Until last spring, however, no decided action had been taken in regard to the matter, and we should "err in our judgment" were we not to mention the praiseworthy push and energy of last year's Athletic Association in the arrangement and carrying out of the day's programme.

The weather on the all-important date could not have been more propitious had the day been set apart for the occurence of some distinguished tournament in the olden times of English chivalry, and the crowd which awaited the various events could very favorably compare with the multitude gathered to witness the clash of shield and spear, at some great passage-of-arms of the time of Prince John. And not less than the bold knights of whom history speaks, did the muscular young contestants, sauntering on the campus, endeavor to win the admiration of the feminine portion of the throng.

The large amount of money taken at the gates made it possible to offer large prizes, so that the competition was greater than it otherwise would have been. The judges for the day were carefully selected. After much debate as to who they should be, the one was decided upon as W. C. Cornish, of Texas, and the other was a local athlete, L. W. Bangs. Great expense was incurred in securing these men, but their close decisions, impartially made, gave great satisfaction to all.

Space will not allow us to enter into a detailed account of the day's events, but we cannot with justice leave the matter without especially mentioning the fine work of A. G. Eames, '91, who won the honors of the day, G. B. Willard, '92, coming in a close second. Cook, '94, did some very fine sprinting, and Jones' ball throwing was something remarkable.

Great success had been hoped in the matter of a field day, but the results surpassed the anticipations of all, the college records being broken without exception. This, although not wholly a surprise, must inspire the athletes of the college to renewed efforts. This kind of work will surely soon place our institution in high rank, if like enthusiasm is exhibited in future years.

Events of the Sear.

WHENE'ER you pore these pages o'er
And read the words here written,
It is a fact, all here's exact,
Though you by chance get bitten.

Though we oft quote some college note,
We take good care to mould it
To read aright in any light
In which you choose to hold it.

We've gathered here, from out the year,
Events to be remembered;
And hope we've missed naught from the list
That we should here have numbered.

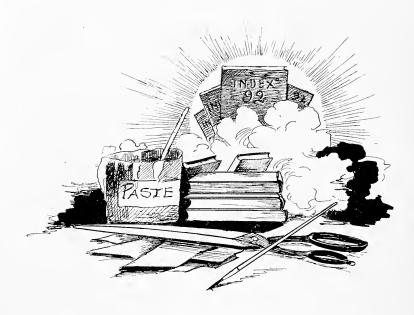

But if some glance reveals, perchance, To you some missing minute, Remember then, you college men, We cannot all be in it.

Just read and laugh — we left the chaff
Our study floor to cover;
And, duty faced, our pen and paste
We'll soon resign forever.

ORDER XCIV. SOPHOMORACEÆ, SOPHS.

This is a large order, characterized by the remarkable manner in which the specimens preserve their freshness. Are found mostly where they are not wanted. Blossom out most gorgeously, with their class colors, at different times during the season. Specimens are apt to be seedy. This order is represented here by the following species:—

Irac Greenei. Common name Slippery. Tall, erect, pale, sub-simple, upper lip pubescent, a sucker. Is apt to appear late in the season. Is a curious plant. Found in woods and fields.

Baconia Timotheus. Common name Tim. Medium size, showy, unimportant, usually supported by a cane. Ligulate appendage well developed. Found everywhere.

Toolus Stephenia. Common name Pete. Indigenous, apex weak. Precocious. Well developed at base, stems wiry. Needs much H<sub>2</sub>O and cultivation. Homely weed.

Marvinia Barnardus. Common name Sam. Ruby crowned, auriculate appendages large. Habitat, North Amherst roadsides, Vespertine. Tough, and very prettily tinted. Paleaceous. Dry Bluffs.

Kirklandi Archea. Common name Kirk. Can be readily recognized by its verdant appearance. Gall entire, stout. Habitat, dining-room. Nodding at times. Wingless. Slightly pubescent.

Smithonia barberis. Common name Red Top. Speckled, luxuriant growth, handsome. Promises to be a desirable farm crop, but will require cultivation a few more years.

Jonesus Johnea. Common name Johnny. Habitat, dry sand hills of Pelham. A small, imperfect evergreen. Good representative of this order.

In Memoriam.

IN MEMORY OF OUR CLASSMATE, HENRY BOND LEARNED.

Killed in Railroad Accident, January 4, 1891.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved classmate and companion, HENRY BOND LEARNED; and

Whereas, He was loved and respected by all who knew him for his faithful efforts and cheerful disposition, both in the class-room and on the campus, his truthful ways and kindness toward all ever commanding our admiration; therefore be it

Resolved, That we hereby extend our deepest sympathy to his bereaved parents in the hour of their affliction, making their loss our loss, and their sorrow our sorrow. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his parents, and also published in the college publication.

> To crib or not to crib, that's the question. Whether 'tis better for man to struggle With sines and cosines of outrageous number, Or to crib straight, despite 'tis dangerous, And by one bold stroke to end it. To crib, forsooth, or flunk; ay, there's the rub; For in that case what fears will rise Of looks of Prof., of marks, of conditions, Of letters home, of long tedious grinds, Of these, of exams. hard and tough, The choice of this or cribbing puzzles now, And makes us rather dare the danger that we have, Than risk the evils that we know too well. Thus does this element make cowards of us all.

High Art.

The sun had sunken to his bed of rest,
His last rays glanced from off Stone Chapel Tower,
The glow had faded from the gilded west,
And naught disturbed the calm, still, evening hour.

In Aggie's halls the sound of slumber deep Reverberated loud from wall to wall, And on the echoing, concrete, college walks Not one belated step is heard to fall.

But look! from out the dormitory doors

Four figures steal with careful steps and slow,
As if the fates of worlds depended on their deeds,
And waiting empires paused, their works to know.

One moment spent in consultation grave,
They scatter to all quarters of the farm
To seize or plunder articles of need,
But all are careful not to give alarm.

They meet once more; but this time better armed,
For now, assembled 'neath Stone Chapel Tower,
They carry weapons destined well to strike
The greatest consternation at the morning hour.

But now the work begins with earnest zeal,
And up the chapel stairs they hasten on,
With paint-pots, tackle, ropes, and willing hearts,
To do the deed 'ere break of coming dawn.

Up, up they climb, past hall and gallery,
Upstairs they pass, with cautious step and slow,
Till from the archway high above the ground,
They see the lonely campus far below.

On the black clock-face now their work begins; Their task it is to get it out of place, Out of its setting, and to lay it where Our figures can be painted on its face.

The tackle now on hand comes into use;
The face is lowered to the archway floor,
And these four youths the paint-brush they apply,
And on the clock-face paint their figures o'er.

When daylight broke great consternation reigned;
Questions were asked and bold conjectures made
As to the way in which the thing was done,
And what the means they called in to their aid.

But Cannavan, with ever-watchful eye,
Finds ladders hidden (?) in the grass close by,
And hastens his discovery to tell
Of how those figures were placed there so high.

As if in confirmation of his words,
A ladder from the roof to archway leads,
While the whole college catches breath, aghast
At the brave daring of such reckless deeds.

Time, passing on, has viewed our early pranks, And fleeting years go rolling swiftly by, But Ninety-Three alone the honor claims Of painting figures on the clock's black eye.

Editorial Items.

No our return to college last August we were pained to hear that President Goodell's health had not improved during the summer, and that he had been compelled to seek restoration of health by a complete separation from the cares and duties of the college. While we regret very much the necessity of his absence for so long a time, yet we realize that this was necessary in order that he might continue his work in the interest of the college. We are pleased to learn that complete rest and the European climate are gradually having their effect. It is now assured that it is only a matter of time when we shall be able to welcome him back. We voice the sentiment of the college when we wish our President a speedy and complete restoration to health. May he return to us with renewed vigor to resume his official duties.

WE feel it due to the editors of Aggie Life that we should make mention of the successful manner in which the paper has been edited during the past year. The students generally do not realize the difficulties under which the editorial board work in publishing a paper of this character, and keeping it up to the standard which every college periodical should maintain. The Aggie Life is no longer in the experimental stage; it is an acknowledged success. We could not do without it today, so important a factor of college life has it become. And now that we have a paper that compares favorably with similar publications of other colleges, let us give it our hearty support, both literary and financial, realizing that it is only by the coöperation of the students that the editors can secure the best results.

AMONG the most pleasurable events of college life are the class trips, which are occasionally taken for educational purposes or recreation. Several of these trips have been made during the past year. The two most extended were the Seniors' visit to West Point and the trip of the Juniors to the large market gardens in the vicinity of Boston.

The Seniors left on the evening of September 16th, and were away three days. The trip was very enjoyable, although one of the party had a narrow escape—he blew out the gas.

The Juniors were allowed two days for their trip, starting on the morning of September 15th. They visited Arlington, Belmont, and Fitchburg, besides the exhibition of the Horticultural Society in Boston. According to what we have heard, these visits were not only a means of imparting considerable information, but were also the sources of pleasure and recreation.

A COMMON QUERY is, "Why do we not hold a higher place in athletics among the colleges of our section?" In reply, it is said that it is simply because our students seldom have the training in this line that would be afforded by a course in a preparatory school. But too much emphasis should not be placed on this fact, and ambition to become the competitors and rivals of our present superiors should not be given up because of this unfavorable circumstance.

It has been our pleasure during the past term to witness an example of what faithful practice will do for a team. Last spring it was the wail of many that there would be no foot ball team this year. True, we suffered the loss of some valuable material in '91, but this obstacle was overcome, and under the captaincy of G. B. Willard, vigorous practice was carried on daily, with results proudly remembered by every Aggie.

Now the base ball season is approaching, and, if each individual player will only determine to do his best, the outcome will be more than pleasing.

We are inclined to attach too little importance to the popularity that an institution acquires by sending out winning teams. Many men will naturally go to the college whose athletic teams are securing the most victories, or at least are making the greatest improvement. So, let spirit be put into our athletics as into all our duties. The college will always feel more like giving its financial support to a team if the members of that team are practicing hard and trying their level best to uphold the honor of Aggie on the campus.

THE CLASS DAY exercises of the classes of '90 and '91 have proved conclusively that this feature of the Commencement programme, so long established in other colleges, may here be made a success, and that in the future we may enjoy, during each Commencement week, this pleasurable occasion, if the graduating class will only put forth their efforts in this direction. Favorable comments have been heard on all sides on last year's exercises, which fact speaks well for the future success of the Class Day.

And now that it has become, as we trust, an established custom, it is to be hoped that each succeeding class will present a programme more elaborate and interesting than that given by their predecessors. Thus one more source of plea ure will be afforded to the students and their friends who gather here at Commencement time.

When this book shall fall into the hands of one of the faculty, it will, without doubt, be their first object to glance hastily over its pages in search of comment on the unpleasant affair of a year ago last March. We have very little to say. While we feel that two of our classmates were unjustly treated at that time, yet we desire to let "bygones be bygones," and we sincerely hope that nothing of the kind may again occur to mar, even temporarily, the usual good feeling between the faculty and students.

Bits of Advice for Freshmen.

Never believe what the Faculty say. They may err in their judgment.

Never subscribe more than twenty-five cents for foot ball or base ball.

After passing a successful examination be sure and leave your cribs on the desk, as the Prof. may wish to correct them.

Do not sweep your rooms oftener than once a term, as dust is dangerous to your health.

When you are working for 121/2 cents per hour take care not to earn any more.

If you don't know your lesson say so. It is folly to guess.

Use the reading room for a gymnasium. It was made especially for that purpose.

Don't try to raise a beard like Dwyer's. You can't do it.

Keep out all the library books you can. No one wishes to read them.

Don't buy anything of our advertisers. They patronize us for the fun of it.

Always let your room-mate clean up for inspection. He can do it better than you.

Never test grapes after dark unless you can run in 2.101/4.

If Sophomores entice thee consent thou not.

Don't snore in chapel. You might wake up your neighbors.

Military uniforms must be worn home at Christmas. It is the rule of the College.

Never give the College or class yell. It is injurious to the voice.

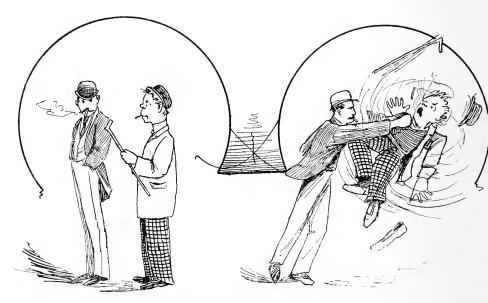

Always take your book into an examination. It may come handv.

If you don't want what you see, ask for it.

Never bolt in less than five and one-half minutes. You may get suspended.

If you want to rush, do it in the chapel. It makes a variety and amuses the Profs.

Buy ten copies of the "Index."

When is the Index coming.....out?

To the students and all those who are interested in the annual appearance of the "Index." we would say that it is in your power to materially aid us and our successors by patronizing our advertisers. The firms here represented we can recommend to you as enterprising and fair-dealing.

The success, and in fact the existence, of an annual in our College depends very largely upon the advertisements. Those who have manifested their confidence and interest in the "Index" by advertising expect the students, to whom the appearance of the book means so much, to trade with them, rather than with those who take no interest whatsoever in the College. We trust, therefore, that our readers will pay especial attention to our advertising pages, and apply the principles of Reciprocity.

A Tonic

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

Prepared according to the directions of Prof. E. N. HORSFORD.

This preparation is recommended by Physicians as a most excellent and agreeable tonic and appetizer. It nourishes and invigorates the tired brain and body, imparts renewed energy and vitality, and enlivens the functions.

Dr. EPHRAIM BATEMAN, of Cedarville, N. J., says:

"I have used it for several years, not only in my practice, but in my own individual case, and consider it under all circumstances one of the best nerve tonics that we possess. For mental exhaustion or overwork it gives renewed strength and vigor to the entire system."

Rumford Chemical Works, Providence, R. I. BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION: - Be sure the word "HORSFORD'S" is PRINTED on the label. All others are spurious. NEVER SOLD IN BULK.

Over one hundred years ago David Landreth commenced the business of raising GARDEN SEEDS for sale, and was the first in this country to pursue it on a systematic plan. His efforts were eminently successful, secured public confidence, and established for his produce a reputation unapproached by any other seeds sold in America. The concern thus founded has passed to the third generation, the present proprietors of Bloomsdale, with whom it has been a leading object to perpetuate the professional reputation of the founder. The establishment, continued on the principles laid down by its founder, has been gradually enlarged, increasing with the growing wants of the country, and continues to be by far the most extensive in the Union, supplying a large share of the demand in the United States, and exporting to Europe, Asia, and Africa, West Indies, Mexico, and Oceanica.

The Cross Fountain Pens.

EVERY PEN FULLY GUARANTEED.

THE Cross Fountain Pen, for simplicity of construction and perfection in operation, is unexcelled. Our aim has been to make a fountain pen in which a regular gold pen could be used, and without the top feed-bars commonly used that make it unnaturally stiff. The simplicity of construction will commend itself, as the pen can be taken apart and cleaned, should it be necessary, and readjusted without difficulty, by even the most inexperienced. The pens used are 16-k. gold, a size larger than used by other manufacturers for same price. This pen is manufactured with the same care as to detail and finish as the Cross Stylographic Pen, and we place it upon the market, fully satisfied it is destined to take its place side by side and share the reputation of the Cross Stylographic Pen, which is recognized the world over as the

THE NEW WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY

A GRAND INVESTMENT FOR FAMILY OR SCHOOL.

The Authentic Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, comprising issues of 1864, '79, and '84, (still copyrighted), has been thoroughly revised and enlarged, under the supervision of Noah Porter, D. D., LL. D., of Yale University, and as a distinguishing title, bears the name

WEBSTER'S International Dictionary.

The work of revision occupied over ten years, more than a hundred editorial laborers having been employed, and over $300,000 expended before the first copy was printed. Every page has been treated as if the book was now published for the first time.

Critical comparison with any other Dictionary is invited.

Sold by all Booksellers.-Descriptive Pamphlet free on application.

Caution is needed in purchasing a dictionary, as photographic reprints of an obsolete and comparatively worthless edition of Webster are being marketed under various names and often by misrepresentation.
